

Glen Gould

When it comes to business, Glen Gould has been there. Having owned, operated, and sold twelve companies ranging from golf retailing to facilities maintenance, Glen has first hand knowledge of what it takes to survive and thrive.

An engaging platform speaker and author of four books, Glen Gould is a business growth and relationship thought leader. He understands business people and how they connect and helps companies large and small to achieve more through targeted verbal messaging.

Glen Gould has worked with Fortune 500 corporations including Allstate, Walmart, Target, Kroger, Kmart, Albertsons, and Publix as well as thousands of small and mid-sized firms. Numerous print publications and news organizations including The Today Show and The Atlanta Business Chronicle have sought and featured his ideas.

Glen Gould was President of the Punta Gorda (FL) Chamber of Commerce during post-hurricane Charley clean-up and revitalization and understands what it takes to get people moving for a common purpose.

In 2005, Glen joined with Ben Turpin to form the Inspiration Agents. Together they inspire audiences to excel in business positioning and development

Glen is married to his high school sweetheart Tammy and they have two sons, Grant and Carson. They reside in Atlanta, GA.